I am a student reading Computer Science at the University of Warwick. I pride myself on my ability to learn rapidly, and I am passionate about broadening my skillset. I thoroughly enjoy problem solving and I'm confident in my ability to tackle big problems, through the combination of an ingrained analytical and methodical mindset, and a natural ability to think creatively. During my time at Netcraft I became rapidly proficient in a whole host of unfamiliar environments, technologies and languages. While solo-travelling from Bangkok to Alaska for 9 months, I worked on a freelance basis to create bespoke dashboard & invoicing systems, massively increasing organisation and efficiency within companies.

Work Experience

Netcraft (August 2018 – October 2018)

Developer in the Takedown department, improving and adding features to the systems behind the automated takedown of 70 million unique phishing sites, rated the most effective anti-phishing service available. I learned BASH scripting, Perl and Git among other technologies, and helped develop features for the front and back-ends of software used by organisations including Microsoft, Netflix, Barclays, and the UK Government.

Freelance (2018-2019)

Identified and solved efficiency problems within small companies, including designing and developing dashboard systems using Google Sheets' App Script to automatically generate timesheets, invoices and quotations for small companies. This is dramatically reducing admin time and providing valuable insights and analytics.

Created a number of websites for small businesses and projects. Some example sites: www.skconservation.co.uk www.wo-nder-design.co.uk

Bartending/Waitering (2016-2019 sporadic)

Gained great interpersonal skills in high pressure environments.
